

The Carol and Lawrence Zicklin Center for Business Ethics Research

Research Proposal

Topic	Current Perceptions of Behaviors in the Workplace
Principal Investigator	Danielle E. Warren
Time Frame	July 1, 2006 - April 30, 2007
Description	This project is an empirical examination of workplace behaviors and the effects of training. Using survey data before and after the implementation of a large-scale ethics program, I test the effects of the training and examine the barriers to employee reporting of rule-breaking behavior. This study will inform the current literature, which is primarily theory, by shedding light on differences in training approaches and behavioral outcomes.
